

2015 Construction & Engineering Awards

From managers to subcontractors, supply chain professionals to finance experts, we're bringing to the fore the unsung heroes of the construction industry and shedding some light on some of the most innovative and successful projects carried around around the world over the past 12 months.

When it comes to the construction and property industries, it's all too easy to be blinded by the finished article while almost completely overlooking the months, years, maybe even decades of hard work and expertise that go into a project.

Which is where the 2015 Construction & Engineering Awards come in. We want to give the people behind the scenes the recognition they deserve. From managers to subcontractors, supply chain professionals to finance experts, we're bringing to the fore the unsung heroes of the construction industry and shedding some light on some of the most innovative and successful projects carried out around the world over the past 12 months.

During the course of the award programme, we will be inviting nominations from across every sector of the construction and property industries, including corporate and social responsibility, health and safety, education, engineering, sustainability, infrastructure, collaborations and technology.

Voting for the 2015 Construction & Engineering Awards is now closed.
